Without the protection Gold can offer against their volatile performance, your portfolio is vulnerable. A portion of your portfolio should always be held in Gold, to provide consistent security and to act as a counterbalance when paper investments are down in value. Here's why.

GOLD, THE BALANCING INFLUENCE

Since Gold entered the free market it has shown a consistent behaviour pattern. Almost invariably, whenever paper investments have dropped in value, as a result of world economic weakness or crisis, the price of Gold has gone up. Then, when the world's economic fortunes have improved, and paper investments have strengthened once more, the price of Gold has correspondingly either levelled out, or dropped.

The illustrated chart follows the relative performance of Gold and the Dow Jones Index since 1972 - Dollars and the US economy being the key indicators of world economic activity. The single 'hiccough' within the highly consistent pattern illustrated occurred in 1980, when the Dow Jones and the Dollar price of Gold rose together. The reason for this was the unusual combination of the US elections. Iran and Afghanistan, which triggered off an abnormal spasm of political insecurity.

Overall, since 1972, Gold has performed particularly well in sterling terms; it has consistently outpaced inflation and outpaced all other forms of popular investment.

GOLD AS KRUGERRANDS

Most investment analysts and financial advisers acknowledge that the best way to own Gold is in the form of Krugerrands. To put 10% of an investment portfolio into Krugerrands makes sound sense. Accepted internationally, Krugerrands are easy to buy, easy to sell, and extremely portable.

A Krugerrand actually contains one full ounce of pure Gold. The value is directly linked with the ruling price of Gold, plus the addition of a premium of approximately 5%.

In 1983 alone, investors worldwide spent over £1 billion on the purchase of Krugerrands. If you would like to knowmore about Krugerrands, fill in the coupon. below and send for the brochure 'Investing' in Gold. Alternatively, you can ning Teledata on 01-200 0200 and they will arrange for it to be sent to you. One of the few beneficiaries ot rate capping.

When the new ratecapping laws were being debated in parliament they were said to be needed to stop local authorities from over-spending.

In the event, some of the biggest overspenders (judged by the government's own figures) will not be ratecapped.

Yet five of the poorest boroughs in the country will.

Ratecapping means that Whitehall has put an absolute limit on what these boroughs can spend on local services.

Services like meals-on-wheels for the elderly, day care for mentally and physically handicapped children and street lighting.

Local councils will also have to look for cuts in services like public health inspection, waste disposal, street cleaning, renovation of poor housing and pest control.

Which may be good news for the rat population, but is bad news for everybody else. Particularly in deprived areas, where the demand for such service is already exceptionally heavy.

But Whitehall's spending limits take little account of this.

They are in fact based on figures which (according to the government's own Audit Commission Report) are out of date and inadequate.

And it's obviously impossible for Whitehall civil servants to make meaningful judgements about the needs of local communities.

The consequences are not hard to predict.

Penny-pinching in areas that are already in desperate need can only lead to further rapid deterioration.

It will put the work of enlightened public authorities in reverse, raising the spectre of problems that have not been seen in our cities for decades.

Problems that will be a lot more expensive to cure than to prevent.

And of course it's not just the poorest areas that will suffer. They do not exist in isolation.

And rats have no respect for borough boundaries.

Ratecapping makes no sense.

HOLIDAY HOMES IN BRITAIN

and the second of the second o

Taking time off over the Trossachs

Robert Fife, of Giffnock, will arrive at the door of their lodge by the shores of Loch Rannoch, in Scotland, to begin their tenth holiday and make a bit of history. They were the first people to buy into the first time-share development in Britain.

As the industry enters its tenth year the number of owners in Britain approaches 20,000 and the number of developments has also risen to nearly 50. Most beloog to one of two international exchange networks, giving owners the chance to exchange within a worldwide catalogue of some 1.500 resorts.

The man who introduced time-sharing to Britain was Mr Frank Chapman. "I thought of this wonder-ful idea, but when I told my friends in America they told me they had been doing it for years!" be said last week.

We had just completed a tour by helicopter of most of the resorts in Scotland, three of them now under the control of the Barratt house-building empire which merged with Chapman's enterprise two years ago. Scotland appeals in many people for its diversity. Most of the resorts I visited offered comfortable accommodation, wholesome food and enough activities to occupy the most asile.

My first visit was Aviemore, where there are three time-sharing opera-tions. I stayed in Dalfaber Village, bought by Barratt hefore the merger with Frank Chapman. The former farm, bounded by the fast flowing Spey, covers 130 acres which now include a small golf course free to time-share customers. Other leisure facilities include an indoor tennis court, on which it bas been found that howls can he played, squash courts, swimming pool, curling and, for those determined to miss-spend their youth, there is snooker. As with most successful resorts there are also gymnasiums, bealth and beauty centres, solariums, steam froms and, for apres squash, a massage parlour.

Planning consent exists for a total nf 140 units, though so far only 54 have been huilt. Among the most popular are the new octagonal "Topsiders," built around a central stalk, which sleep six people with ease. .

Weeks at Dalfaber range in price between £2,100 and £7,850, and as at several Scottish developments they are sold "in perpetuity." Manage-ment charges in the smallest nuits are £40 for every week owned, rising to a maximum of £90 in the largest Aviemore is not the prettiest place in Scotland. Indeed first impressions in Scotland. Indeed first impressions at the railway station are verging me the depressing, but for seekers after Realth, and ski slopes, it is hard to better. There are already seven ski tows and 14 pistes, ranging in degrees of danger from slight to considerable. The Aviemore centre itself is undergoing a renaissance, and should eventually appeal to the more discriminating (and affluent) visitor.

In the village are two more time-sharing opportunities. One is at the Coyinm Bridge Hotel, where some attractive-looking lodges are being built in the grounds, and the other is close to the Avienore Centre, catering especially for ski fanatics.

The latter, called Scandinavian Willage is putting agent emphasis on Village, is putting great emphasis on the exchange opportunities and promises huyers a travel voucber worth £1,000 for use in their first exchange. Also, in common with all resorts linked to the RCI (Resorts Condominiums International) network, nwners can exchange their British week for two in America, hecause there is an imbalance in the number of available developments in Europe to cater for all the American owners wanting to come here. While the Scandinavian Village's While the Scandinavian Village's 65 boliday homes do not offer the same degree nf opnlence fruind at Barratt's developments they are certainly comfortable. In addition, owners have the nse of the very considerable facilities at the holiday centre next door. Prices for weeks start at £2,100 for low season in a unit sleeping four, rising to a high season week costing £6,500 in a unit sleeping six.

Aviemore is only 40 minutes drive from Inverness Airport. Among the other memorable attractions of the village is the Cairngorm Whisky Centre and Museum, run by a very English-sounding Scot named Frank Clark. Here my host and I did tackle the malt whisky lake, but with no fewer than 107 varieties to cope with failed utterly.

The Loch Rannoch development is now all but complete and Barratts expect it to be sold out next year. The £112 million entertainment and conference centre is almost ready and then Britain's first time-share resort will be truly finished. The hotel at the centre of the complex is also fully booked, proof, were it needed, that leisure development is bringing life and employment back to the more remote parts of Scotland and that is without the financial support of the Highlands and Islands Board.

There are 85 lodges at Loch Ran-noch and owners bave a choice of many facilities, including some excel-lent new squash courts and a challenging dry ski slope. The units range in size from 550 sq ft to 1.750 sq ft, and there are not many of the 4.335 weeks left to sell. Prices range from £2,500 for a studin in lnw season (sleeping two) up to £7,730 for a highland lodge sleeping eight in the high season. Weekly maintenance charges are hetween £40 and

In the heart of the Trossachs, 50 miles from Glasgow, is Forest Hills, perhaps the flagsbip of Barratt's successful leisure arm. It stands in 22 acres of parkland overlooking Loch

All the apartments have views across the loch towards Ben Lomnnd and for golf fanatics there is free play on the nearby Aherfoyle club Course.

All the facilities are here, but the most spectacular achievement is surely the indoor curling rink. All 56 units will have two hedroons and prices for weeks range between £5.950 and £7.950, Management fees are £10 for each week nwied. The resort is linked to R C1. whereas Luch Raonocb belongs to the other network, Interval International, work, interval interoational.

The final leg of my journey took me to the Westero Isles for a complete contrast in holiday bomes. The Melfort Estate, by Oban, in Argyll, is heside one of Scotland's most beautiful sea locks and for someone seeking total tranquility there are surely few better places.

seeking total tranquility there are surely few better places.

Mcifort, once the centre of the Campbells of Melfort, was bought and developed as a gunpowder mill in 1838. Production ceased after a catastrophic explosion in 1867. Now a young family, the Stotts, are restoring the 17 estate cottages and work is also progressing on the construction of a small swimming pool struction of a small swimming pool and leisure centre in the old gunpowder house.
The centre, linked to RCL offers single, twin and three-bedroom cottages from £1,000 a week up to £3.550. Maioteoance charges are currently between £34 and £37 a week. The area is not easy to get to. Glasgow being a two-hour drive away, hat the peace of this wild, yet normally mild corner of Scotland is worth the journey.

Such high-mindedness cannot be recoociled for long with the minutiae of Conservative party politics. Crawford left the Commons without the slightest regret on inheriting his title in 1915. D.J.M.: That depends on who they are pre-scribing it to the first point being that diagnosis really becomes the first step. I thick also that we are beginning to see that recommendations that we made have been takeo a little too far and that people are excluding certain foods from their diet and may he puttiog their diet out of halance. For example, avoiding eggs which are a very inexpensive. high - quality protein source.

I think avoiding dairy products either in children or in older women, is wrong since they supply 70 per cent. of the calcium that we get in our diet. We know that hone disease is a problem in older women.

We are treating everybody as if they had the disease and I thick we are slightly imhalancing the over-all nutritional pattern of segments of the popu-

K.C.H .: Do you think, then, that we shouldn't give any dietary advice to the healthy?

D.J.M.: I think the only advice we need to give individuals at a normal cholesterol level is general education on nutrition; how to get a halaoced diet and not to live on what are called empty calories: junk food.

At the other extreme of the population are those who survive mostly in health - food stores. thinkkinds o f food-stuffs are in some way going to increase their life expectaocy. We really nced education in general nutrition rather than some kind of specification that this stops heart disease. this stops cancer, this stops arthritis, or the other things. We really doo't have the evidence to say we can guarantee the absence of these diseases.

K.C.H.: On the present evidence then, you would not say that diet modifications play an equal part with the other factors which seem to influence the iocidence of coronary heart disease, such as smokiog, lack of exercise, ohesity, hypertension, etc?

D.J.M.: If we look at priorities of what is related to the development of the disease it is usually considered that cigarette smoking is first, elevated blood pressure is secood and elevated blood cholesterol is third.

We have very good evideoce now that treatment of hypertensioo can effectively reduce the incidence of heart attacks. There is good evidence that reducing cigarette smoking reduces the incidence of beart attacks. We don't have any evidence in studies either carried out in the United States or in Europe that dietary intervention, even with highrisk people, can effectively reduce the iocidence of beart attacks. And I thick that is where the quandary comes in, the lack of evidence, so that one cannot equate it with decreased cigarette smokiog or the treatment of hypertension because we really don't have the evidence to say that it will reduce the incidence of heart attacks.

K.C.H.: You haven't mentiooed stress in your list of risk priorities.

D.J.M.: Well, stress in what is called in the United States a Type A personality, that is a somewhat assertive/aggressive personality who trics to do everything at once, is known to increase risk. The other type is the per-son with a sedentary lifestyle who doesn't do any-

Both these people are at increased risk from the disease, along with people with mild glucose intolerance. This is why it is important to look at all the risk profiles. It's not going to do much good to change somehody's diet who is also overweight, mildly hypertensive and gets no exercise because his risk profile really isn't going to change all that

But people who are learning to live a little less stressful life-style I think have a tendency to enjoy it more and possibly to live longer.

CHRISTMAS AND MINERS

IT IS ONLY TO BE EXPECTED that as Christmas approaches Christian pastors, like the Bishop of Norwich (from whom we published a letter yesterday) and Christian laymen like Mr Roy Mason will seek ways in which the seasonal message of goodwill can be applied to the hitterest social conflict now raging in Britain; nor would this newspaper for a minute suggest that the Incarnation is irrelevant to the miners' strike. It behoves Christians at all times, and particularly at this time, to love their enemies and to make sure, as far as possible, that devotion to temporal causes, however just, does not degenerate into personal hatred. It behoves them also to do all they can to see that the material hardship which arises from such events as strikes is tempered hy charity, even though much of that hardship is self-inflicted.

But the bishop occupies different ground when he suggests that the clergy should put their services as mediators at the disposal of both parties to the diapute. To begin with, he shows some confusion in suggesting that the object of the exercise should be to find a way of settling the matter without asking either side to sacrifice its principles. There is no way in which that can be done, since the principles are mutually incompatible. One side or the other must change its position; and this can only be brought about by the exercise of political skills which have nothing directly to do with the message of Christmas. With such skills, the clergy are not pre-eminently enduwed, at any rate at present.

May goodwill flourish at every miner's hearth this Christmas: may the Coal Board itself rest merry, and Mr MacGregor's stocking hulge. May we all return refreshed—to pursue reconciliation, indeed, hut also "to fight the good fight." Who knows (for the Christian influence is in its nature oblique) a few days concentration on higher and more amiable matters may induce some people to develop a sounder idea than they have at present about what "the good fight" is. But, for Heaven's sake (in the most pious meaning of that phrase). let not the bishop convert the festival into a conference.

FUNDING THE BBC

GIVEN THE WAY in which the Government and the BBC go about their financial business, there was always likely to come a point when practical politics would carry more weight than the principle (if there is one) of protecting the BBC's virginity from advertisers. In other words, when to require the Corporation to admit advertising would create a smaller political row than raising the licence fee. With a request from the BBC for a whopping 40 per cent. lift in the licence fee, that point now seems to have heen reached. A pity, in our view.

Vain for the BBC to declare that Denmarkindeed most of Europe—pays more; vain to point out that something is owed on account from the last round when the BBC got (£7) less than was asked for. It always is. That is the way the game is played. In any case, at least part of the deficit arises from adventures, such as local radio, in which the Corporation has been drawn too far from its foundations. It is also unwise for the BBC to hint that if a fee of £65 creates hardship for the needy, the Government should invite social service departments to pick up the hill. For that heightens the impression that the licence fee is a tax on viewing rather than a fee in respect of BBC services; and renders Ministers so sensitive on this subject.

So the political odds must be on the BBC losing this bout. There will be lamentations from those haunted by the spirit of John Reith (dwindling in numbers); from those whose experience overseas presents the BBC in a hetter light than we get on winter evenings round the set here; and from the Independent companies who will be called upon to share with the BBC at least a proportion of their commercial spoils. There will enter into this controversy, speciously, the housemaid's bahy argument. Assurances will he offered that advertising on the BBC will be restricted to one radio channel or another; to certain bours or programmes. and so on. These declarations will not be worth much. Once the principle is ahandoned, and when the shoe pinches again, a persuasive case will be made out for just a little more. Ministers should take care to avoid any such commitments. If they enter them now, to ease their way, they will soon be charged with bad faith.

LUMP SUMS

SEVERAL REASONS can be urged for a reforming Chancellor to turn his gaze un the exemption from tax of lump-sum pension payments. It is a serious anomaly in the tax treatment of pensions. It enshrines no sacred principle, and is far from the only way that capital provisioo can he made for old age. It offers a useful revenue return of around £650 millinn to a Chancellor planning a tax-neutral Budget. It is also the main means of raising money from the pensions industry which does not translate into a payroll tax and a worsening of present unemployment. But the major objection to it is that it represents a breach of the basic principle of pension taxation, which is that exemption applies to contributions and during accumulation but that tax falls due on withdrawal. Mr Lawson feels that this exemption should be ended, which is a fiscal policy we have endorsed.

The political risks of bold action are apparent. Over 110 MPs of all parties have so far signed an early day motion of protest, which threatens a rebellion. Their warning to Mr Lawson against shocking deeply entrenched expectations has weight, for many people have made precise calculations for retirement and for the discharge of their mortgages on the planned receipt of this tax-free lump sum. The scale of the numbers involved—13 million people are in private schemes-denies the Chancelfor the strength of feeling that he is moving against a special vested interest; it is more like a universal interest. Those affected include many on low incomes, since the average payment is around £8,500. Mr Lawson may he less concerned about the renegotiation which must follow of Civil Service pensions, given that many civil servants, are presently ohliged to take lump sums. But he is rightly anxious to stem the sudden rush of senior executives for early retirement, promising yesterday that retrospective legislation will not be brought in.

Mr Lawson's main alternative to outright abolition of the exemption is to phase it out over a very long period. This yields him small amounts of revenue for years to come. The main case is against an anomaly, however, and phasing out is the course least likely to damage the Tory aim of spreading attention to the details of the Belgrano the ownership of private pensions.

extensive use of the notorious Section 29 of the Internal Security Act, which allows the police to hold suspects for interrogation for 50 days. This period can he renewed indefinitely.

Against the hackground of elections to the new tricameral parliament, which most Indians and Coloureds were persnaded to boy-cott, and a highly successful "stay at home" atrike organised by blacks in the Rand, there have heen three recent waves of arrests without trial

The organisation known as the Detainees' Parents Support Committee claimed last month that 1,006 are now being held incom-municado; of these 530 are school pupils, students and teachers. These figures, and lurid reports of savage police operations carried out in the black townships, bave fuelled the anti-South African campaign now being mounted in America under the leadership of Bishop Desmond Tutu, with the object of changing American policy. The campaign is meeting with considerable success.

Nevertheless, the long-term future of South Africa looks reasonably secure. No one now sees the iodepeodent hlack African States as the wave of the future. With two or three exceptions, all have slithered into bankruptcy and dictatorship; some have cut adrift from the international economy altogether and reverted to tribal subsistence-living.

PAUL JOHNSON

South Africa has the strongest economy on the Continent, indeed the only really modern one. But in many ways it is a typical African country. It practises discrimination, but then virtually every African State discriminates hetween its citizens on the grounds of race, skin-colour, religion or trihal affinity. South Africa's misfortune was to have its system of discrimination codified into a fullblooded ideology.

It is bedevilled by radical intellectuals who either want to hand over power immediately to the majority, and in doing so wreck the economy, or to entrench white rule on the basis of a biological theory. It was the Professor of Social Psychology at Stellenboscb, H. F. Verwoerd, a typical intellectual activist if ever there was one, who created apartheid as a form of ethnic socialism.

On the Left it is seen as something ultra Right-wing, but the implications of the theory are closer to the State socialism prac-BY comparison, South Africa tised by Stalin than anything tn deal of hrutal social engineering, usiog hulldozers to shift human beings as though they were sand or concrete; eotire populations are transplanted not, to be sure, on the The Russians evidently no longer scale employed by Stalin but in a see southern Africa as an area manner to cause untold heartache where they can profitably invest and misery. Like Stalinism, it in-io subversion and civil war. They volves wide police powers and arrest without trial.

Many other African States practise social engineering through the bulldozer and the pass-law, and in this respect also South Africa is typical of the sub-continent.

Where it differs is in possessing an advanced capitalist sector centred on a miniog industry which have all failed; indeed they illusis the largest and most efficient trate Karl Popper's "la wof unining the West. Ultimately, it is is the largest and most efficient movement, full citizenship and tended effect." It is often said that more hlacks own cars in South Africa than ara owned hy private citizens in the eotire Soviet Union. Certainly, South African hlacks own property on a scale not to he matched anywhere oo the Continent.

Bishop Tutu'a recent claim that the hlacks would welcome a Soviet occupation is manifestly absurd: all over black Africa they vote for South Africa with their feet.

One of the most encouraging developments in recent years is the rise in the status of hlack South African women. In the past 15 years the number of black women in the professions has tripled to over 95,000, not much less than the total for white women (113,000) and considerably more than is to he found in the whole of independent black Africa.

TT IS often assumed in the West that the right to vote stands automatically at the top of black priorities. I don't believe it. Oneman-one-vote has proved a great delusion in independent Africa. When the blacks got the suffrage they thought they were being given justice when all they got in fact was the right to elect black politicians.

The blacks of South Africa know this perfectly well. Their real order of priorities revolves round more practical aims. Their greatest single desire is to get a better education, for themselves and their children. They want a proper law of citizenship instead of the resent muddle and ambiguities. They want clearly defined property rights so that they know exactly where they stand and what to work for. They want an end to the hated system of "Influx Cootrol," be found in the capitalist West. which makes it difficult for them Like Stalinism, it involves a great to move to the cities and forces vast numbers to act illegally.

They want the abolition of the list of "Scheduled Occupations," which prevents blacks from bolding skilled jobs, especially in the mining iodustry. Not least, they waot fundamental changes in the system of social control in the townships, which means that black people do not, in effect, have the right of habeas corpus and can be arrested at will by the police and even murdered in broad daylight. Now it so happens that on every single one of these aspirations, the blacks have the full support of the husiness community. Business wants hlacks to have freedom of property rights, hetter education, the right to take any joh for which

AN UNUSUAL row bas broken out in America between Samuel Beckett, the reclusive Irish playwright, and the American Repertory Thealre of Boston which this week opened a new production of Beckett's bleak and bewildering 1956 masterpiece "Endgame."

To the rescue

MOUNTAINEERS in the Lake District have good cause to remember with gratitude Col. Horace Westmorland, who died recently at the age of 98 and at whose initiative the Lakeland Mountain Rescue team was created.

Westmorland, known as "Rusty." was a distinguished climber in his nwn right — clambering up his first fell at the age of four and his last well into his 90s. At 85 hc climbed the difficult 2,000 foot Pillar Rock in Ennerdale, to celebrate the 70th apniversary of his first climb there.

It was after be belped to rescue the mountaineer Wilfred Noyce, stuck on a crag in the Lake District, that he suggested the formation of an emergency team - an idea that was acted upon within days and led to the foundation of the first volunteer group at

BARGAINING ON WAR IN SPACE

From Lord GLADWYN

SIR-Mr Julian Critchley's article (Dec. 11) on Reagan's hid for is an eloquent a slam" plea for our not "selling him short" on his "star wars" proposal and for hacking up the United States generally in its forthcoming and very welcome talks with Soviet Russia.

But it does beg some pretty important questions.

Let us admit, then, that "star wars' was one of the main reasons why the Russians bave agreed to resume the talks. Let us also assume, with Mr Cnichley, that they—as indeed most Europeans—are geoninely terrified by this scheme.

We for our part fear that when it hecomes operative (if it ever doest, America, but not Europe, will achieve immuoity from nuclear attack. The Russians fear they may, eventually, be Russians rear they may, eventually, be at the absolute mercy of the Uoited States, something for which some new Russian regime might be prepared to go to war to preveot, and that, even if they could avoid this, it could involve the country of the could avoid the could involve the country of enormous expense resulting in a collapse of their already shaky economy.
There are good grounds for both of these apprehensions. But there is another powerful anti-"star wars" argument. Nohody knows what the exact effect in the Americao economy would be

We must therefore, hope that the " tension." We must mererore, nope that the project will only be regarded as a bargaioing counter and, in effect, he replaced early during the talks by a verifiable agreement not to make preparation for a war in space. aration for a war in space.

In addition, however, to supporting star wars "Mr Critchlev lays down that any "nuclear freeze" would put the West in a "position of inferiority." (
This briogs up the whole, rather nonsensical theory of "nnclear parity." What is the point of "equalling" your adversary when you have the ability of knocking anybow? There is admittedly a case for having enough nuclear weapons in Europe to "deter" the Russians from ever using their SS20s against us here ever using their 5520s against us here about another "walk in the woods"? As for "no first use." well, the binfi involved in "first use" will no doubt be maintained by Nato. But bluff it is and hluff it will remain. What is, essential is for us to reinforce our nonnuclear defences.

Political threat lies in taxation of pensions

From Mr ROBERT McCRINDLE, MP (Con) From Mr ROBERT McCRINDLE, MP (Con) SIR—Io your edition of Dec. 11 uoder the heading "Pension chiefs start taking tax threat seriously," you report pension managers referring to the virtual collapse of the established peosioo system if Mr Lawsoo applies to pensioos the same logic he used on life assurance premiums in the 1984 Rudget premiums io the 1984 Budget.

May I suggest that it is time the Government started taking equally seriously the political threat should they succumb to temptation to move in the direction of taxation on pensions?

Whether it be hy reducing or abolish-iog the tax relief available on cootrihutioos to occupational pension schemes hutioos to occupational peosito schemes or the taxing of the pension funds them selves. leaving employers to make not the shortfall to provide anticipated pensions, the reaction will be considerable among those who have traditionally supported the Conservative party.

Zimbabwe sentences

SIR—I can reinforce Mr L. G. Pine's proof (Dec. 5) of the tyrannical proof (Dec. 5) of the tyrannical government of Zimbabwe with the cases of Frank Bertrand and his soo, Stephen, now serving prison sentences for altegedly plotting to overthrow the Frank had been interested in the welfare of the Matabele people among whom he lived, and there is no doubt that he was framed by men who had infiltrated a meeting he was holding. Stephen arrived in Zimbabwe for the first time only the day before the arrest, so could not possibly have been involved in any plot. He is a British subject (he does not hold dual British/Zimbabwe citizenship), and the failure of our Foreign Office to obtain his release is deplorable. Some time ago it was announced in Zimbabwe that consideration was being given to legalising confessions made under torture. This alone is proof of the tyranny that now rules Zimbabwe.

Malt's part in the quality of whisky

SIR—Air Vice-Marshal S. B. Grant in his recent letter over-simplified the issue wheo he urged producers of Scotch whisky to state on the labels the proportion of malt whisky contained in their brands. Such information would not necessarily help the consumer and could even lead to confusion.

could even lead to confusion.

Thirty years of hlending Scotch whisky have taught me that a high proportion of malt is not, of itself, a guarantee of quality. Character and flavour are also affected by factors such as the against and proportions of the different makes in the blend and the care with which they have been selected to ensure that they have been selected to ensure that each enhances the qualities of the

A typical blend may contain 30 or A typical blend may contain 30 or more individual malts and four different grains, of different ages and in varying proportions, selected from over 11S distilleries in Scotland. Malt whiskies are highly individual in character and not all of them get on well together. The presence of too high a proportion of a few of the more assertive malts could produce an off-note in an otherwise harmonious hlend.

Grain whiskies, too, have their own individual characteristics and, like maits, they have to be mature spirits. This would not be apparent from the simple declaration requested by Air Vice Marshal Grant and be may well find that he is better served by his practised palate and his knowledge of the blends which have survived the test of time. which have survived the test of time.

A declaration of the age of a blend as requested by Mr R. B. Burtt (Dec. 10); would not necessarily he beloful. Legally the age of a blend is the age of the youngest whisky in the blend so that a brand containing, say, 50 whistees aged seven or eight years and one aged five, would have to be described as a five year-old blend.

Much more important is the statement of strength. In the case of the small minority of brands hottled at less than the normal of 40 per cent, alcohol by, volume, it is essential that the declara-tion that the whisky is under strong should be printed in bold type and in a prominent position on the front label.

The Government has promised to strengthen labelling requirements to deal with this point. It is in the interests of the consumer that they should introduce such legislation without delay.

Checkmate the hijackers

SIR—When a hijacked plane lands the whole purpose of the malefactors' action would be negated if they could immediately cut off from all communication and particularly if they knew in advance that this would happen!

To this end every airport should be able to call upon a vehicle or plane equipped with a fog generator an ascraft radio-jamming device, and a loud craft radio-jamming device, and a loud hailer. When needed, the vehicle would move upwind of the hijackers and immediately envelop their plane with dense fog. The loud hailer would inform them that their radio was neutralised so that oo demands could be received, and that the passengers would be protected. Under cover of the fog the plane's runway would be blocked and the plane approached for any counter action decided upon. decided upon.

If this system were adopted by all the world's airports then large multi-liogual posters with pictorial explana-tions would show any potential miscker that his plans would come to nought. J. D. B. PERKINS Lindfield, Sussex.

OIL PRICES plunged sharply in spot markets yesterday but traders said that the fail was unjustified and blamed non-oil industry speculators for the drop.

Brent, the North Sea marker price, dropped to $25.00 a barrel, almost $2 below its official price of $25.65 a barrel and was being quoted at $27 for delivery in February.

The Commons Select Committee on Energy in a report published yesterday accepted that the British National Oil Corporation will have to introduce more fierfile, spot market related pricing policies to avoid a repetition of this year's £45m loss.

It was announced yesterday that bankers and their more flamhoyant Sir John Nott is to succeed lan Fraser as chairman and chief executive of Lazard Brothers when Mr Fraser reaches normal retire-ment age in August, 1985. Until then the two will run in harness as co-chairmen. In addition, the three wise men — Verner Wylie, Tom Manners and Peter Grant will be deputy chairmen.

Lazard Brothers is also taking a leaf from the book of its New York associate Lazard Freres. It has recruited a 36-year-old American, Gilbert Scharf, to build up a new capital markets facility specialising in currency and equity swaps. in stripping coupons from bands and similar operations that reduce the cost of capital by precisely matching customers' needs.

Shake-up at Montagu

UNLIKE LAZARDS, the management changes taking place at Samuel Montagu, Midland Bank's 60 p.c.-owned merchant banking subsidiary, look far from tidy and well thought out and raise some serious questions about the future relationship between the two institutions

The dramatic news that chief executive Staffan Gadd is to quit after just four years, announced late on Wednesday night, confirms what many in the City have suspected for some time - that there has been a major clash of will between Montagu and its parent. going far beyond the usual cultural differences between staid clearing merchant banking culleagues.

Staffan Gadd is credited with having put Samuel Montagu back on the map after several years in which the once famous merchant hanking name lost much of its former glory. Since taking over in 1980. Mr Gadd has prodded the bank into becoming one of the top ten Eurobond bnuses and has earned a reputation for putting together some eye-catching deals, not least the £500 million Swedish loan arranged at the end of 1983.

Mr Gadd has made little secret of his desire to push Montagu into the hig league of international merchant banking with a particular emphasis on international securi-ties markets. Minitagu was one of the first banks to take advantage of the changing City environment by arranging to buy 50 p.c. of lead-ing gilt-broker W. Greenwell in March this year. The problem for Mr Gadd is that his plans have involved massive spending on people and premises at a time when Midland Bank is in a mood for serious financial retrenchment after its losses in America.

Montagu's other shareholder, Actna Life, with 40 p.c., must also be less than happy with the return on its hefty £66 I million investment two years ago Instead, Montagu's profits are expected to show a sharp slide this year from the £11 million after tax achieved in 1985.

The problem for Montagn is the the succession so far looks far from satisfactory. Sir Michael Palliser. a distinguished diplomat, takes over as chairman, hat without an  executive rule. Christopher Sheridan one of the few lungserving Montagu directors, takes over the running of the bank, leaving a clear executive spot still to be filled at group level.

The real danger, however, is that, Midland, having allowed Montagu to do its own thing fur four years. will now get the worst of all worlds: by imposing its own heavy hand.

Crumbs of comfort

MR LAWSON, the Chancellor, yesterday stood on his rights and the refused to guarantee the pensions industry against the threat of being in liked to linance cuts in income tax next spring. He did, however, give two modest assurances, which will be useful in preventing complete panie. He pledged that the Government would not introduce a retrospective tax, and he also agave an assurance that nn one a should take early retirement in all order to protect a tax free lump sum from lax.

The first undertaking will not be enough to satisfy Robert McCrindle. M.P. who demanded a guarantee that anyone already in pension scheme by the date of the next Budget should be exempted from any luture tax legislation. We understand what the Chancellor is means is that any entitlements is earned in the past will be treated a separately from future entitlements in the event of any tax being brought in.

So for example, anyone with 50 years' service and say 10 years still. to work before retirement would, he certain of tax exemption onthree-quarters ur whatever precise ; percentage of any eventual lump-sum benefit has already been carned. Anyone now nearing retirement would be subject to tax on only a tiny fraction of any lump sum which they can claim no retirement. In no case would the tax exceed the money they would a luse anyway by retiring early. By implication there is not much point in rushing to join a pension abead a of the Budget either.

 Our policy of diversification has continued to pay off and we have recently ennounced the purchase of 65 fully stocked offlicences at a cost of £3.3m and two public houses in London at a cost of £1.2m.

 Pre-tax profits for the year to 29 September 1984 at £13.03 million—up £957,000—continue the unbroken trend since 1968.

 A final dividend of 6.655p per share net makes a total for the year of 10.055p - an increase of almost 11% over last year.

 While beer profits did not reach last year's levels partly because of the miners" strike, hotel profits and wines and spirits profits are well shead and now account for 42% of the total.

Developments during the year include a tranchise agreement to brew Tuborg lager and major alterations in 47 existing pubs and the acquisition of 4 pubs, 35 offlicences and the 210 bedroom St. John's Hotel, Sollhull.

 Sales and profits have started well in the current year.

 We plan to dispose of Fred Koch brewery, New York State, and have included as an extraordinary item £0.8 million as the possible loss occurring on disposal.

 To reflect the change in the emphasis of the company's activities, we are proposing to shareholders to change our name to "Vaux Group plc", of which the principal divisions will be Vaux Breweries, Wards and Darleys Breweries, Swallow Hotels and James Bell wines and spirits.

The secret of AE's sudden upsurge is its penetration of dull and declining markets. In an exciting year we achieved record profits of £131.3 million before tax, 371/2% higher than last year. These profits do not include any of the anticipated savings which will be made following the merger of our operating banks in late 1985.

Through the merger, by creating a single bank which will operate throughout Great Britain, we shall attain our objective of offering existing and potential customers a distinctive and efficient service through a unified organ-lisation. Not the least of our reasons for taking this initiative is our desire to be ready to respond to the higher level of competition which we see emerging within the financial services industry.

Sir Michael Herries, Chairman

Group Operations. We have achieved significant growth in all area with domestic banking the major contributor to the very satisfactory results. It has been most encouraging that a large proportion of the increase in the number of current accounts is attributable to our decision to offer free banking throughout the Group for personal accounts in credit. This facility has been offered for some years by Williams & Glyn's Bank and has proved to be an outstanding success. It has now been extended to The Royal Bank of Scotland and we are confident that it will be particularly attractive to personal customers. On the lending side, both banks increased their involvement in the home mortgage market, while at the same time we achieved significant growth in consumer lending. Earnings from commissions and fees have continued to show a good increase. During the year our stake in Lloyds and Scottish plc was sold for £91.6 million.

Key figures

The Economy. Economic recovery has continued in 1984, but at a rate significantly lower than had been expected. Despite this there have been some favourable developments. Export volumes have been buoyant, though imports too have continued to use steeply. Investment by companies also has begun to respond strongly. Moreover, company profitability and liquidity have improved significantly. However, the consumer boom which underpinned the recovery last year has shown signs of fading and it is plain that industrial recovery remains very uneven.

The authorities have had considerable success in achieving control of inflation and the outlook is still one of a relatively modest rate. While the fall in the international value of the pound should have direct and beneficial effects on our export trade, it is nevertheless worrying to observe the apparent tailing-off in the rate of productivity improvement and the upturn in wage costs per unit of output. This will not assist the prospects for further economic expansion in 1985. Neither does it augur well in the longer term for the U.K.'s international competitiveness in 1985. Neither does it augur well in the longer term for the U.K's international competitiveness and external position.

The financial markets over the last twelve months have been characterised by considerable volatility underlining the continuing fragility of confidence at home and abroad. To some extent, the volatility has been the result of domestic factors but for the most part it has reflected events in the foreign exchange markets.

year. Further major developments are planned in those industries associated with North Sea oil and gas.

In Scotland there has been a number of promising developments which have contributed to making industry's position rather easier than in the previous

The Financial Sector. Changes in corporation tax rates and the phasing out of capital allowances will adversely affect the growth of leasing business in future and this, together with the requirement to deduct tax directly from interest paid to most personal customers, will have a major impact on our business.

In addition, we are concerned that the proposals to enable building societies to extend their range of services should be accompanied by a requirement for them to fall in line with the standards required of other financial institutions.

The de-regulation and liberalisation of the U.K. financial system may contribute to its international competitiveness. However, with the creation of so-called 'financial supermarkets' it is important that the pace of change should not outstrip the evolution of supervisory systems which will maintain high standards of protection for savers and investors.

The Future. We shall be seeking constantly to diversify our activities. For example, we have already submitted an application to allow us to provide car insurance through our own wholly-owned insurance company and we hope to sell our first policies early in the new year. The results achieved this year demonstrate our success in developing our business and improving profitability and balance sheet strength as we work steadily towards our merger. We are confident that we shall continue to build on the sound foundations for the future established by our two existing banks and to expand still further the business of the new Royal Bank of Scotland in the years ahead.

By MICHAEL CAREY in New Delhi

THOUGH a long and possibly tortuous path still lies ahead of them England could derive a measure of guarded satisfaction from yesterday's events in the second Test in New Delhi where, after dismissing India for 307, they ended at 107 for two from 46 overs.

But for the untimely departure of Mike Gatting, who cruelly played on when building confidently on his century in Bombay, England might have been more prosperously placed.

Even so another doggedly fought day brought some valuable bonuses as well as almost an identical ration of runs and wickets as the preruns and wickets as the pre-

There were also three more wickets for Richard Ellison, the reward for finding a good line around off stump, and although England may spend today's rest day regretting that India'a last three wickets were able to add 99 runs, the match is still very ouch within their reach.

Kapil soon goes

Ironically, although the day began with the considerable encouragement of Kapil Dev's wicket without addition, it was mid-afternoon before India were bowled out, Kirmani. Prahhakar and Sivaranta all playing in a way that suggested that despite the pitch's quirks, England ought not to be dismissed too quickly, unless over-ambitious.

Kapil's supply of luck clearly had not extended beyond the first evening and to Ellison's second bail, which was outside off stump, he offered a limp, speculative stroke from which he was confortably caught by Downton.

Prabhakar, however, batted in n way that supplied proof that he had made centuries going in first at a lower level, often hitting through the line with a flourish and a success that has eluded his peers in these cooditions on that was come unconstituted. fortably often from England's

Early on, Prabhakar, hooking at Ellison, saw a top-edge go close to the diving Downton and the next wicket did not materialise until Gatting, now stationed a slip insead of Lamb, plunged to his right to dismiss Kirmani off

Survives appeal

Eventually Ellison, now operatbg round the wicket, had Prab-hakar caught behind as he drove but Sivarama and Yaday prohat Sivarama and Yadav pro-duced mare strokes of authen-ticity before the leg-spinner, hav-ing survived Gatting's appeal for a slip catch off Edmonds, was adjudged run out by Rohinson's throw.

Their partnership of 49 for the Their partnership of 49 for the last wicket was only two short of India's record against England, established by Nadkarbi and Chandra in 1963-64, though it had nearly ended at 274 when a thick inside edge offered by Yaday off Pocock flew quickly to safety off the shoulder of Cowdrey at short less.

Robinson, however, looked hearteningly secure from the start. Playing very straight be was conjent to accumulate quietly. mostly to the arc between cover and mid-wicket unless there were

Gatting's footwork

On this pitch, too, neither he nor Gatting wisely put their trust in operating on the back foot, unless the ball was wide, and with Gatting using his feet to the spioners while Robinson remained soberly as home, the pair complemented each other perfectly.

With Gatting once driving Yadav straight for four from some way down the pitch and occasionally finding scope to cut, the only alarm came when Rubinson, out of character, aimed to cut an off-break which turned abarply and had to be dug nut at the last minute.

Of the spinners, Yadav, whose high action enables him to make the odd one hounce, even on this pitch, needed most watching and patch, needed most watching and it was in trying to do this that Gatting egonisingly played on in the last over of the afternoon session, the ball spinning back from a careful defensive shot to dislodge his off bail.

Lamb appeared next, rather than Gower, though there was no deep significance attached to the change. By now the main problem came from Kapil Dev, making the odd ball skid through low from just short of a learth low from just short of a length, hut Lamh quickly realised that straightness was a virtue aod as Rohinson reached his first Test 50 in some 2½ hours, the pair saw the day out with no other problem.

New Zealand started well and went ahead with a goal from Peter Daji in the 24th minote. Their lead lasted for only four minutes as Snain's captaio converted a penalty corner.

matches, finishing notion and second to bottom respectively io the six-pation event.
So far the lournament has gone strictly according to the formbook, with New Zealand and Spain, the late replacements for West Germany and India, finishing in the lower placings. Scotland were the first home country to enter the international indoor srena. Until Marietta Craigie retired in 1985 they wers well shead of other British teams and twice runners-up to the powerful West Germans. The gold medal will be decided today when Olympic and world champions Pakistan meet Australia, holders of the Champions Trophy.

Clean sweep England overhauled Scotland while making a clean sweep of home countries' opposition in January sod Ireland pushed Scotland hard when losing 7-8. Now, using 10 Uister players five from the Pegasus club, Ireland could surprise everyope.

Ireland are England's first opponents tomorrow. The three most feared Irish players outdoors, Margaret Gleghorne, Elish Macken and Joanne Menown, may prove equally devastating indoors with their precise skills.
